Art Fairs - Exploring the Many Possible Benefits of Using the Art Fair Venue as an Important Research Tool in Professional Appraisal Research

Jeremy Stone, ASA | Founder and Managing Director | Business Matters in the Visual Arts LLC

Frances Zeman, FASA | President, Head Appraiser, Senior Projects Manager | Appraisal Resource Associates, Inc.

Gabrielle Selz, AM | President/Owner/Appraiser | Selz Fine Art Appraisals

Art fairs have become a vital source of information for primary and secondary sales in the gallery level of trade. Not only are the galleries clustered in one or more related/satellite locations, they also offer art and design appraisers an invaluable opportunity to collect and compare data for market trends, buyer demand, and pricing dynamics. This session will explore strategies for maximizing engagement with art fair participants from pre-fair preparation, on-site research, interacting with and building valuable networking relationships with dealers, including discussions of onsite sales strategies, as well as with post-fair follow-ups. Some of the fairs discussed will include Art Basel Miami Beach and Art Miami, ADAA, The (various) Armory Shows and TEFAFS, Friezes, and FOG Design+Art. Panel attendees will gain actionable insights to refine their appraisal techniques and enhance their abilities in market analysis.

Island Currents: Appraising Caribbean Contemporary Art in a Global Context

Dr. Donna Thompson Ray | Appraiser | ATFA Appraisals

Market studies of artists living and producing work in the Caribbean archipelago and its diaspora locations lack integrated and sustained attention. For artists who reach six and seven-figure results at auction and private sales, their hard-won path to success is shaped by the dominant culture's acceptance of their differences: Afro-descendent, Indigenous, first language, alternative religious practice, and gender orientation. Where do they fit in? This session will examine the recent market of three contemporary Caribbean/Caribbean American artists from Haiti, Jamaica, and Puerto Rico. We will explore how these artists speak to the "Caribbean Contemporary" and what factors shape their market attention.
